WEATHER OF CONCERN

Southern California

A strong Santa Ana wind event will bring strong and widespread northeast winds through this evening.

- In the Los Angeles County mountains, widespread damaging wind gusts of 60 to 80 mph are expected, while coastal and valley areas will likely see damaging wind gusts of 40 to 60 mph.
- A strong Santa Ana wind event will impact areas from metro Orange County to the Inland Empire and the adjacent mountains and passes.
- Red Flag Warnings in effect until 1800 hours this evening for areas in Los Angeles, Ventura, San Bernardino, Riverside and San Diego Counties. Orange County is in effect until 0300.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Main forecast concerns for the period starting this weekend through Tuesday night are rain and snow chances to the northern mountains and northern Valley, and low overnight temperatures. Monday and Tuesday near or slightly below freezing for the Valley. Dry weather influenced by an upper level high pressure system in the eastern Pacific will prevail across the forecast area today. Patchy fog and frost are possible in the lower San Joaquin valley this morning, but will taper off quickly in the late morning as temperatures begin to rise. High temperatures will rise to the upper 50s and lower 60s for the valley and foothills, and 40s/50s for the higher elevations, which is a few degrees above average for this time of year. A small weather disturbance will move across the Pacific Northwest and will clip northern California Sunday through Tuesday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Strong Santa Ana winds will continue this morning in some areas of Los Angeles and Ventura counties before diminishing through this afternoon. High pressure aloft will build in from the Eastern Pacific supporting gradual warming on Sunday. A deepening trough of low pressure will likely bring cooler conditions with some coastal areas getting low clouds. Locally gusty north winds shifting northeast by the middle of next week.
